

Eric Texier, Les Chailles Roussanne, Vin de France, Northern Rhône, France, 2022

Producer Profile

A man of conviction but by no means a zealot, Eric Texier likes to push the boundaries.

Despite having no experience or contacts in wine, Eric decided to give up his career as a nuclear engineer and study winemaking in 1992, interning with Jean-Marie Guffens at Verget in Mâcon. Lacking the network to buy his own vineyard, Eric did his time with established winemakers then made négoce wines with the fruit of like-minded purists until he was introduced to François Pouchoulin, AKA the Godfather of Brézème. Eric was fascinated by the history of this tiny enclave on the southernmost edge of the Northern Rhone, on the left bank of the Rhone. It is South facing, has limestone-rich clay soils and, at 300 meters of elevation has an increasingly steep aspect with terrain that grows rockier as the slope rises. In the mid-19th century, its wines rivalled those of Hermitage but, by 1961, just one hectare remained. Thanks to Pouchoulin's help and guidance, Texier eventually succeeded in purchasing a tiny parcel of vines in Brézème. Many years later, Éric has now put the Brézème appellation back on the map, and is the leading grower there. After Brézème, Eric and his wife Laurence (the backbone of their business-they are very much a team and travel everywhere together) purchased another tiny plot, this time in the Ouvèze valley in the Ardèche, on the right bank of the Rhone. This site has granite soils, is at a higher altitude than Brézème and has higher growing temperatures. According to Eric, both of these classic Northern Rhone plots had almost been forgotten because of their isolated geographic position and small surface areas. Today, Eric and Laurence have 12 hectares under vine, with vines aged from 30 to 90 years old on both sides of the Rhone, all worked organically. This is not a sudden conversion or a response to trend, Eric has worked organically since the beginning. As for biodynamics, he follows some of its principles but is not dogmatic about it.

Viticulture

Grapes for 'Les Chailles' are selected from a few south-facing parcels of incredibly rocky, limestone-rich soils in Brézème, on the hillside of La Carrière planted in 2009. All hand-harvested.

Winemaking

Direct pressed followed by a native yeast fermentation and aged on the lees for 15 months in large, sandstone tanks and bottled by hand with no added sulphur.

Tasting Note

An exceptional cuvée with pristine mineral drive, elegant floral, white peach and citrus, thrilling texture and a revelation in the world of white Rhône.

Food Matching

Pair with richer dishes and stews (pot au feu, garbure, petit salé) in its youth, and more refined cuisine as it evolves.
